

What can I do with a career as...

An Army Officer?

Anything and everything! By completing the Army ROTC Program at CMU, you will develop the skills needed to become the most sought-after professional in the job market: A proven leader.

Consider that Army officers often have more responsibility their first day on the job than most people have their entire lives.

“America’s best leadership development program” will give you an advantage over your peers for the rest of your life, regardless of your chosen career. You will be part of one of the world’s largest and most connected fraternities, which will provide you opportunities for employment, government service, and graduate studies that are not available to others.

Army ROTC graduates may choose to pursue full-time military careers, or they may combine Army and civilian life and serve part time in the Army National Guard or Army Reserve. Army ROTC program graduates are leaders in nearly every career field. Many fill the nation’s highest leadership positions as:

- Corporate Presidents and CEOs
- Secretaries of State and other State Department positions
- Senators/congressmen
- Professional and College Coaches
- University Administrators and Professors
- FBI, CIA, AFT, and Secret Service Agents
- Army Unit Commanders and General Officers

Professional tasks accomplished through a career as an Army officer include:

- Preserving world peace
- Relieving suffering
- Stopping oppression
- Promoting democracy
- Defending the Constitution of the United States
- Protecting the liberties of Americans

The Army has many exciting and high-tech career fields that will provide you with invaluable experiences in the civilian sector. Some of these fields and positions include:

- Aviation
- Infantry (Special Forces, Rangers, Delta Force, Paratrooper)
- Armor/Cavalry
- Signal (Information Technology)
- Engineering
- Medical (Administration, Medicine, Dentistry, Psychiatry)
- Military Police
- Artillery
- Transportation (Distribution Management)
- Adjutant General (Human Resources Management)
- Quartermaster (Supply Management)
- Ordnance (Maintenance Management)
- Finance
- Chaplain
- Judge Advocate General (JAG/legal)

The Army ROTC Program at Central Michigan University is open to all students without obligation. The program supports success in any career field and is packed with challenging and exciting adventure training.
